NO MONEY WORRY

Possible Air Attack On Paris Is Not Feared

Third of three stories telling what has happened to average people living in countries at war.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
AP Feature Service

PARIS—Madame Jean Q. Frenchman is holding her little family together these days by long distance methods. She not only has to write to Jean, but also to her children as well.

No Worry Over Money

Madame has many things besides letter writing, however, to occupy her. She knits for the soldiers. Frenchwomen always have been ardent knitters. But Madame has changed her pre-war favorite colors of blue and pink for khaki and beige.

There are men's jobs to be filled. Madame may now be punching tickets in the subway—or even reading gas meters. And if she has time left over there are the volunteer service corps.

Madame doesn't have to worry too much about money, if she hasn't a job or a nest egg. The government allows her 12 francs daily for herself (10 francs in the provinces) and 4 francs 50 centimes daily for each child. (The franc is worth about 2 1/2 cents.)

She does worry though—a lot—about Jean. This worry has been mitigated somewhat by the demobilization of men 49 years old and fathers of two or more children.

Madame's concern has been reduced, too, by knowledge that there have been no big battles.

Madame is perplexed by this contrast to the terrible days of 1914, but she continues to read her newspaper avidly, watching with scorn Hitler's efforts to split France and Britain.

Gas Masks Neglected

The possibility of an air attack on Paris doesn't disturb Madame so much now, since none has occurred after many weeks of war. She is encouraged in this attitude by the return of thousands of Parisians who evacuated the capital before hostilities commenced. And Madame no longer carries her gas mask everywhere she goes.

She still dresses smartly—and on a small amount. She can buy whatever she pleases in the shops, although some shops have closed through lack of business or of personnel. The principal difference she notices in shops is that windows are crisscrossed with gauze paper as protection against splintering and there are big signs pointing the way to the fair (air raid shelter) "for our clients."

Madame carries a flashlight at night because of the blackout. She walks more because subway and bus service is restricted, though not so badly as at the start of the war. Train service is better, too.

No Ration Cards

The only food restrictions Madame has to face are the closing of all butchers or shops on Mondays and the ban of the sale of beef on Tuesdays. There are no ration cards and no prospect of them since France is one of Europe's most self-sufficient nations.

Keeping the home fires burning has become a problem. Many apartment landlords, bereft of most of their tenants, cannot afford central heating for those who remain. So Madame has resorted to electric heaters, coal fires, or to digging the old box burner out of the cellar. The landlord helps on the fuel bill by reducing the rent.

Madame still goes to the movies—and she has seen all the shows in town. Cinemas were forced to continue showing the same pictures or to revive old ones for many weeks when war halted domestic output and curtailed importations.

That is nothing, however, compared to the closing time of cabarets. With Jean, home on furlough, more cabarets are opening. These open at 6 p. m., but they turn you out in the very bud of the evening, by pre-war standards—11 sharp.

A Thought

Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.—James 3:10.

Two Navy Planes Crash in Midair

One Man Found Dead, But Five Fliers Escape

SAN DIEGO, Calif. —(AP)— Two navy torpedo planes crashed in mid-air 75 miles east Friday and eleven naval district officials said later two of six men involved were reported safe.

Charles W. Post, radioman second class, was taken to Brawley community hospital where he was suffering from a sprained ankle and shock. Flamer Edwin Jackson, radioman third class, walked to the Borego valley road camp, near the crash scene, and was awaiting a naval salvage crew there.

Officers said the two radio men reported they saw two other men leap from the crashing planes, but were unable to say what happened to them. The men reported safe landed by parachute.

Naval authorities declined to give out the names of the other four men comprising the crews of the two ships until they learned their fate.

Mine Disaster Is Fixed at 92 Dead

Hope Is Abandoned for Men Entombed in Shaft

BARTLEY, W. Va. —(AP)— Hope was abandoned Friday night for the entombed men in the blast-swept Bartley No. 1 mine and company officials put the death toll at 92, the worst mine disaster in the nation since 1928.

Raymond E. Salvati, vice president of the Pond Creek Coal and Coke Corporation who had led rescue crews day and night in their efforts to reach the trapped men, issued this statement:

"We have penetrated far enough to justify our thoughts that there was no possibility that the men barricaded themselves (against explosion gases). They are all dead. They would be dead even if they had barricaded themselves. There is insufficient air."

The rescue squads found 27 mangled bodies in the wrecked corridors 600 feet underground, leaving 65 still missing. Only three bodies had been identified but relatives of the trapped men sadly started preparations to bury their kin.

Not since 1928 was killed in the Mather, Pa., mine explosion of 1928 has the death toll in a mine disaster been higher. The all-time record is 365 killed in the Morongah, W. Va., explosion of 1907.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

Independent Team Wins Sixth Straight

The Columbus Independent basketball team Friday night defeated Ashdown Independents, 53 to 45, at Ashdown.

Scoring honors went to Herbert Parker of Ashdown, former Magnolia A. & M. star, who registered 16 points. He was closely followed by A. Caldwell, 14 points each.

Christian at forward for Ashdown, and R. C. Delaney at guard for Columbus, played good ball.

The Columbus team has recently added a new player, C. Fair, former Henderson State Teachers college star. The win at Ashdown Friday night was the sixth straight for Columbus in six times out.

Any southwestern Arkansas independent team wishing games with Columbus may get in touch with Dan Hamilton.

Medical Men Are Heard in Trial

Packed Court Room of Spectators Listens Intently

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(AP)— A procession of medical men, qualified as expert witnesses, moved across the stand in federal district court Friday to testify that they considered a claimed cancer cure offered at the Baker hospitals of Eureka Springs, Ark., and Muscatine, Iowa, to be without value for purposes for which it was advertised.

They appeared for the government in the trial of Norman Baker, 56-year-old founder of the hospitals, and four associates, on a charge of using the mails to defraud in advertising the cure. The charge was dismissed as to three other original defendants, on government motion, late Thursday.

A packed courtroom, listening intently to the testimony of the medical authorities, was startled near the end of the day when the white-haired Baker leaped to his feet and attempted to make a statement to the court.

"Your honor," he said, interrupting a witness, "may I say a few words." Defense counsel asked him to resume his seat, and he complied.

Baker subsequently handed out a statement that he had desired to protest references by District Attorney Sam Rorex to "Baker does this and that," such as having written literature, booklets, etc., when he knows it's the Baker hospital administration and not Baker. He always speaks of all defendants as Baker.

The medical men heard Friday were Dr. Max Cutler, author and surgeon, director of the Chicago Tumor Institute and assistant surgeon at Northwestern University; Dr. Francis Carter Wood, 70-year-old retired professor of cancer research at Columbia University and laboratory director at St. Luke's Hospital, New York; Dr. D. A. Rhinehart, Little Rock X-ray specialist; Dr. H. W. Hundling, Little Rock surgeon; and Dr. Glen H. Johnson, Little Rock physician and radium specialist.

The government indicated its case might be rested Saturday.

Weather Summary for Year 1939 Is Prepared By University of Arkansas Experiment Station Staff

By GEORGE W. WARE
The weather is often deceiving especially in Arkansas and adjacent territories. What seems to be a predominantly dry year may be an unusually wet year and vice versa. For example, 1939 has the reputation of being a dry year, and it certainly was during September and October, but as a whole, it is the second wettest year during the past ten, totaling 55.70 inches as compared with the 60-year average of 61.37 inches.

Maestri, New Louisiana Kingfish, Faces His First Test Before Voters January 16

By MASON DIXON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW ORLEANS — When the Long political machine goes on trial at the Democratic primary Jan. 16, the political fate of strange, powerful Robert Sidney Maestri also will be decided. Maestri isn't running for anything — he never has—but he is the issue of this campaign. He is the mayor of New Orleans, admitted boss of the Long machine, Earl Long, brother of the late Huey, is his man. If Long should lose the nomination for governor, Maestri's power would be badly shaken.

Greatest individual property-holder in New Orleans, Maestri is one of the richest men in the south. He got into politics when Governor Long named him state conservation commissioner. When Huey starved out the Old Regular party organization in New Orleans and forced the resignation of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, Maestri was named to succeed him.

Maestri Took Over Long Machine

By juggling election dates, the legislature assured him a six-year term. And when Governor Leche resigned, Maestri became the dominant figure in the Long machine. Earl Long, hat in hand, long sought Maestri's endorsement for the governorship. At last he got it.

Now Long faces a desperate fight for the nomination.

Always until now the strong silent man behind the scenes who never campaigned or appeared before the public Maestri was at last forced by the acuteness of the situation to make a radio speech. He read it haltingly from manuscript, endorsing Long wholly as his candidate.

There are in New Orleans really two parties and a third element. The Long city organization is one. The Old Regulars is another. The third element is called vaguely "The Re-

GERMANS COMING

But Finns Gird Selves for a Picked Battle

By the Associated Press

The war in the air held the spotlight Saturday for the fifth successive day in the European conflict, with German scouts speeding over Britain's east coast and British fliers ranging as far as Austria and Bohemia.

The British said they shot down one of the raiders Saturday morning off southeast Scotland.

The German high command in its report, confined to Friday's operations, said a British plane was shot down on the Western front; and another, when eight bombers made an unsuccessful effort to attack German destroyers at Heligoland Bight.

First Scout Flights

Britain said the first scouting flights since the war began were carried out Friday night over Bohemia and Austria, as well as in northwest Germany. Whether they flew from England or France was not disclosed.

The island of Sylt, North sea German air base, and three German destroyers were bombed, but no hits were claimed.

The British said their aircraft returned safely from the various expeditions.

Explosions and fire swept the ship-building yard at Northwich, Cheshire, western England. Officials said no sabotage was involved.

Russians Withdraw

In the Finnish-Russian hostilities, Scandinavian advisers said Russian troops had been withdrawn from part of Linnahamari, Finland's Arctic port, and both Russian and Finnish forces were being strengthened on the Salla front, apparently for a major battle.

The invaders along the Mannerheim line were reported advising defense troops over loud-speakers to "surrender within eight hours or the Germans are coming."

The Western hemisphere's security zone, designed to insulate the Americas from the European conflict, will undergo a study by the Inter-American Neutrality Committee at Rio de Janeiro beginning Monday.

Soviet Russian airmen rained bombs on at least a dozen cities in Southern Finland Friday in air raids which cut Helsinki's telephone communication with the world and silenced a radio station at Lahti, important railway junction north of the capital.

The Russian raids, although producing one of the heaviest bombings of the month—and a half-fold war effort to cause much damage failed, at Lahti.

Ground activities in both wars were limited to scouting and patrol activities, except in Northern Finland, where Russian soldiers were reported beginning another drive to penetrate the little republic from the north.

On the Karelian isthmus, dangling parachute troops made easy marks for Finnish sharpshooters and several groups of 50 men were reported killed Thursday as they fell to the earth.

A British statement on air activities said royal air force men bombed the German island of Sylt, dropping explosives on a row of lights believed to have been a flare path to guide German aircraft in Rantum bay.

"Much useful information" was obtained, the statement said, by British bombers flying over Hamburg, Frankfurt, Bremen and the industrial Ruhr district.

A daring German raider penetrated England's defenses to the Thames estuary but was chased away, leaving a trail of smoke, by three British Spitfire planes.

Inflammation of Blood Veins May Occur Suddenly and Produce Serious Results

The term "thrombophlebitis" refers to an inflammation in the lining of a vein, resulting frequently in coagulation of the blood inside the vein. The condition sometimes occurs spontaneously with immediate pain.

The first step is always rest. The patient should lie flat in bed and not move his limbs. Hot moist packs should be applied until the immediate signs of inflammation have disappeared. This may take a week or 10 days. Sometimes use of X-ray under medical control helps to subdue the inflammation.

The physician then usually makes a complete study of the patient to determine whether any specific cause can be found for the inflammation of the vein. In some cases, infections in the teeth, throat, sinuses or elsewhere seem to be associated with inflammation in the vein. Control of these infections will help to prevent further trouble in the form of phlebitis.

Sometimes, excessive smoking seems to be a factor, in which case it is necessary to demand that the patient cease this habit.

One of the great dangers of phlebitis lies in the fact that portions of clots may become detached and travel elsewhere in the body. This produces the condition called embolism.

If such a clot becomes fixed in the lung or in the brain, it may threaten does exist, and many instances are recorded in which such emboli have produced serious results. Any patient with an acute inflammation of the veins demands constant medical attention to make certain that everything is done to prevent an emergency.

In general, thrombophlebitis is treated by elevating the leg, applying hot wet packs continuously, and keeping the patient in bed long enough to make certain he is healed. Such patients may also require extended protection over long periods of time.

A demonstration in making and caring for hardwood cuttings was conducted at the Spring Hill 4-H club meeting. A safety bull pen is the only practical method of keeping the most valuable animal in the herd, and also provides a sure method of protecting the attendant from injury by the bull. Cooperative Dairy Bull Associations being set up in the state are recognizing the importance of pens by stating in their by-laws that all bulls must be kept in safety pens. Satisfactory pens can be built at a very low cost by utilizing native material, according to Paul Carruth, extension dairyman for the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. The pen need not be elaborate, but should be built strongly enough to hold the animal securely.

In the past, Mr. Carruth says, often bulls have been allowed to run with the herds. This is a serious mistake for several reasons. First, no accurate breeding records can be kept, making it impossible to give the cow the proper length of dry period between lactations. Second, the bull may break out and serve the neighbor's cows, which may be of another breed, and thus do immense amount of damage. Third, the bull is usually dangerous and should not be allowed to run at large.

A safety bull pen will furnish the necessary exercise for the health and well being of the animal; and the dairyman will be in a position to handle pen work efficiently, taking much of the guess work out of their breeding programs.

True Aristocracy

It was a sad day for the earth when money stole the stamp of worth. And man began to judge a friend merely by what he had to spend. And make his motor car and dress badges of genuine success. True aristocracy requires Descendants who reflect their sires in courage and in purpose true; Who, whether dress be old or new Still meet the simple moral test Of holding fast to what is best. A dozen poverty are worse Than is the poverty of purse. Poorest of all on earth is he Who lacks the thought to kindly be Or lacks those beauties of the mind Which mark a mortal as refined. Once more we turn again to see How lasting graciousness can be; How great is honor and how fine A faith in joys that are divine; That using well the gift of birth Is the eternal proof of worth.

Prizes went to Mrs. Bernice O'Dwyer, Mrs. C. C. Lewis, and Mrs. Lloyd Spencer. Following the game the hostesses served a most tempting salad course with hot coffee.

Out of town relatives attending the funeral services held for Mrs. J. D. Morrison Friday afternoon from the Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Home in this city were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinton and son Thomas Hinton Jr., Mrs. Lee Williamson in Texarkana and Mr. and Mrs. Eakin Kinser of Little Rock.

formers," backing Sam Jones for governor. The Old Regulars feel toward Maestri about as the conquered Gauls felt toward Julius Caesar. He licked them, and he was boss. But they didn't love him. He crammed the Earl Long candidacy down their throats.

Battle of aBanners Entitles Campaign Joseph A. Airey, chairman of the Citizens' Voluntary Committee, and head of the "Reformers" has been asking Maestri some embarrassing questions about refusal of officials to open certain public books and records. Mayor Maestri answered cryptically "Mr. Airey isn't there."

Presently New Orleans rocked with laughter. Three men paraded in front of City Hall bearing banners.

"MR. MAYOR, HAND-BOOKS OPEN, CONSERVATION BOOKS CLOSED."

"MR. MAYOR, HOW ABOUT THEM BOOKS? MR. AIREY IS THERE, RAYMOND 3222." (The Airey telephone number.)

"MR. MAYOR, OIL PROFITS FOR YOU. SALES TAX FOR US."

Police Jail Pickets The pickets had been in front of City Hall only a short time when a crowd rushed from the hall, bent up the "Reform" pickets, destroyed their banners. Police came and arrested the pickets. Maestri later guaranteed the right to picket politically.

But questions remain unanswered. Newspapers charged that millions of barrels of "hot oil" have been run off the Iberia field.

The chief operator in the field was an oil company owned by Mayor Maestri and William G. Hols, the extraordinary Greek-born oil man who made enough money from Louisiana oil to go to Greece to exploit a national oil monopoly.

While the campaign has been filled with political maneuvering to connect Maestri with the "hot oil" situation, nothing has been proved, and he remains almost the only mayor leader of the old Louisiana machine who has faced no legal entanglements, no formal proceedings or accusations.

What Would You Do in the Orient?

Would You Protect U. S. Trade or Abandon It?

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — That conflict on national policy which grinds and grinds within the government was well illustrated here at one of the academic brain conventions which hit Washington during the Christmas-New Year holidays when professors are free from class.

"The grinding continues relentlessly year in and year out, with first one side gaining a bit and then another. But for the most part, these major influences on the nation are virtually forgotten by almost every one except leading historians and those within the government who are forever concerned over "grand strategy." They blossom out so seldom that when they do, they startle casual readers. They even startled a few of the thousand or more historians who met in a Washington hotel ballroom while A. Whitney Griswold, of Yale's department of government and international relations, and Captain W. D. Puleston, United States Navy, retired, presented a few of the rival viewpoints.

To Fight or Not? Should we preserve our position in the Far East, by force of arms if necessary?

No, said Griswold. He has written repeatedly that it was a bad move for the United States ever to have taken on the responsibility of the Philippines. He believes the country now thinks the same. "The Washington and London naval treaties, the Philippine independence act, and last but not least the cash-and-carry neutrality law showed a very substantial qualification of the 'command-of-the-sea' doctrine," he said.

Did Captain Puleston agree with him? He did not. He reflects the navy almost unanimous view that the theories of sea power outlined a generation ago by Captain Mahan are more in force now than ever before.

"When Americans realize," he said, "that the best naval defense is a naval offense, I am convinced they will provide the necessary bases for the American fleet in the Far East." (These, no doubt, would be either in the Philippines or in Guam, or both.)

"If the Philippines did not exist, it would still be necessary for the United States to protect its interest in the Far East," he continued.

On the other hand, Griswold argued that there were no grounds in experience for the assertions of the seamen that America must fight or be ready to fight in all parts of the world to protect its foreign trade lines.

That, he said, is a doctrine which Captain Mahan carried over from the British.

"Because the welfare of so few Americans, as compared with Englishmen, was bound up with overseas traffic of any kind," he said, "the American people never wished to do those things as much as the British."

But that is a mistaken policy, said the naval man. "Professor Griswold states that the United States invests less capital abroad than Great Britain. This is one of the contributing causes to the world crisis. Economists almost universally agree that the sudden cessation of American capital exports in 1929 was an important cause of the financial crisis. The continued 'looking-inwardness' of American citizens protracts the depression."

The thing goes on endlessly. Just how the naval power expansionists have the upper hand. The navy is growing greatly. Mahanian Captain Puleston glories in it.

"Americans may not want any more territory now," he says, "but there have been other occasions in American history when they did not want territory and later changed their mind."

But Count Ten Before Mailing

LARAMIE, Wyo.—(AP)—Many people believe that once a letter enters the United States mail postal regulations forbid the recovery of it by the sender before it reaches the addressee.

That isn't so, says Postmaster A. E. Holliday of Laramie. Postoffices have instructions to go so far as to telegraph distant cities, if necessary, to extract a letter from the mail if the sender suddenly changes his mind and decides he wants to take back what he said.

It is only necessary to identify yourself as the sender of the letter, by describing it minutely and providing a sample of your handwriting.

Magnolia Man Is Indicted by Jury

More Than 25 Witnesses Heard — Cleaver Denies Guilty

MAGNOLIA, Ark. — Charles E. Cleaver was indicted on a first degree murder charge in the death of his wife after investigation was made by a special grand jury Thursday and Friday.

The jurors heard the testimony of more than 25 witnesses. After the indictment was returned, a trial date was set for January 29.

During the indictment reading Cleaver seemed unmoved but after the verdict was completed, shook hands with Judge Britt and with tears in his eyes, said "If ever a man was innocent, I am."

The body of Mrs. Ozella Hallis Cleaver was found in a cramped position near a burning bed in the couple's home at their tourist camp in Magnolia. A coroner's verdict of death by unnatural causes led to the autopsy revelation of a quantity of poison in the woman's internal organs.

Razorbacks Drop Contest to Texas

Longhorns Continue March Toward S. W. Title

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. —(AP)—The University of Texas Longhorns continued their headlong rush through the Southwest Conference basketball competition here Friday night with a 52-33 victory over the University of Arkansas Razorbacks before 2300 fans.

The Razorbacks opened up with a rush and led 17-11 after 10 minutes of play but the visitors tied the count 20-20 after 18 minutes of play. Forward Chester Granville of the Steers bagged a field goal just before the period closed to give Texas a 22-20 halftime lead.

W. D. Houpt, Longhorn center, opened up with a barrage of field goals in the last half to enable Texas to coast in for the victory.

John Adams, the Porker's all-conference forward, was high point performer with 14, making 1 of them in the first half. Guard Howard Hickkey of Arkansas was second with 13.

Granville, inserted in the lineup as a substitute, furnished the spark that set the Texans afire to consume the Porker lead. Guard Bobby Moers, the Longhorn's all-conference star, gave a stellar performance on the floor.

Three players, Hull and Moers of the Steers and R. C. Pitts of the Porkers, were ejected on excessive personal fouls.

Ashdown Defeats Saratoga Cagers

The Panthers have lost only one league game to date.

The Saratoga girls team defeated the Pantherettes 44-33 in the second game. Opal Spates led the Saratoga team with 19 points. Marguerite Gentry led the Pantherettes with 15 points, followed by Thelma Pomittington with 14. Class of the conference the Saratoga girls chalked up the first league victory of the year over the Pantherettes.

Light Amid the Darkness in Paris

PARIS—(AP)—Following a report by experts that a "luminous halo" is visible over Paris at night under certain atmospheric conditions have been issued.

In the future particular attention must be paid to shading any light which tends to be deflected upwards, as from elevator shafts and the upper stories of buildings.

Parisians are also reminded that the "halo" in question was probably caused by growing carelessness, and warned that "not even a glimmer" must be visible from the windows or private residences.

In order to boost business in the French capital after dark one concession has been made. Hereafter shop owners may light their window displays, providing the light is "directed solely on the exhibited objects."

The use of luminous signs remains forbidden.
